Point of view (In the process, Parc du Musée Royal de Mariemont, 1999)

A route which takes into account 10 perspectives, marked by a series of 10 square frames in the dimensions of a man with his arms stretched out horizontally. They hold up a square leveling staff 10cm wide, which is juxtaposed with another, longer and farther off, and together these allow us to situate an exact viewpoint, to measure the line of the horizon between them, and to define a very specific axis of sight.
